Regimental funeral planned

CEREMONY A regimental funeral for the Mountie officer killed in a crash while on a crackdown for speeders will be held in Valleyview Monday.

Const. James Lundblad, a seven-and-a-half-year member of the Alberta RCMP and native of Valleyview, was killed after a grain truck slammed into the side of his vehicle while on the lookout for speeders.

The service will be held in the Valleyview Arena May 11 and will start at 2 p.m. with the reception being hosted at the Memorial Hall in Valleyview.

OUTBREAK Provincial health officials say an Edmonton area woman and two central Alberta boys have tested positive for influenza A (H1N1), also known as swine flu.

That brings the total number of cases in the province to 33.

The woman did travel to Mexico while the two children didn't and all three cases were mild, said health officials.

Reports also emerged Thursday night that an elderly woman who had swine flu has died in northern Alberta, CBC News Online reported. It was not clear whether she had any other underlying conditions.

The U.S., Canada and Mexico vowed Thursday to fight what they called unjustified bans on pork products in the wake of the outbreak. WITH FILES FROM REUTERS

Gas pipe dreams dashed?

Shale a factor: Experts

The energy industry's decades-long dream of tapping vast Alaskan and northern Canadian gas reserves faces perhaps its biggest threat yet, a flood of new unconventional supply located closer to markets, say experts.

Multibillion-dollar Arctic pipeline proposals, first envisioned in the 1970s and rekindled in the past decade as gas supplies tightened, have been buffeted by regulatory delays, government wrangling and rising costs. Now, industry experts wonder if rapid development of gas trapped in shale formations throughout the United States and Canada could render Alaska and Northwest Territories pipelines obsolete even before any steel is put into the ground.

"It certainly threatens to do that," said Robert Ineson, senior director of North American natural gas at Cambridge Energy Research Associates. "The increase in onshore, lower-48 production since 2004 is equivalent to more than two Alaska pipelines. The only thing that's keeping it from growing further at the moment is lack of demand."

Even as the recession pushed gas prices to multi-year lows, the buzz over shale gas intensified as companies have announced finds pegged in the trillions of cubic feet.

Backers of the $26-billion US Alaska pipeline proposal and $13.8 billion Mackenzie pipeline had said a main rationale for their projects is the threat of price spikes as conventional production wanes. Neither project is expected to be in service until the next decade or later.

"The amount of gas that's been found over the last 24 months was clearly inconceivable to forecast five years ago," said Manuj Nikhanj, vice-president of Ross Smith Energy Group, a Calgary-based firm. "So at no fault of people's thinking five years ago, there's been a huge paradigm shift with respect to the natural gas market."

Both of the city's school boards have halted its restrictions on field trips Wednesday night. Edmonton's public school board will now allow students and staff to resume air travel within Canada, as well as all international field trips and district business trips. The Catholic school board also voted in a closed-door meeting in favour of lifting the ban on all field trips outside of the province. Both boards made the initial cancellations over fears of the influenza A virus (H1N1), also known as swine flu. METRO EDMONTON

Shining a spotlight on mental illnesses

CMHA says treating kids at an early age beneficial

ANDREW COWIE
for Metro Edmonton

Teachers in Edmonton Catholic schools were wearing green Thursday to raise awareness on student mental health issues.

As part of a new partnership with the Canadian Mental Health Association, the schools wanted to raise awareness on life-long mental ailments that can be discovered and treated earlier if dealt with at a young age.

Tom Shand, executive director of the Alberta division of the Canadian Mental Health Association, tion, said that a stigma remains on the issue of mental illness, and that by promoting what people can do and spreading education, they can attack the problem earlier.

"People are fearful on

"People still don't openly discuss (mental health issues) ... But if you (accept) the idea as kids, you'll carry it to adulthood."

Tom Shand, Canadian Mental Health Association

how they'll be seen," said Shand. "(They) don't have the same comfort level."

Shand compared how people misunderstand some mental illnesses like schizophrenia to how people labelled cancer or HIV victims in the past, and said with more open discussion, some of the fears and worries about mental illness will dissipate.

"People still don't openly discuss it ... though now a lot of things (they feel more comfortable (with)," he said. "But if you (accept) the idea as kids, you'll carry it to adulthood."

Shand said that half of people with long-term ailments could be diagnosed at the age of 14, adding that the earlier people know about their problem, the sooner they can be helped.

"The earlier they're treated, the better the life possibilities," he said.

Closed fire door results in $2K fine

NIGHTCLUB An Edmonton nightclub has agreed to pay $2,000 in fines after pleading guilty for obstructing an emergency exit.

The city says a fire-prevention officer noticed an exit door at the Laser Express Box nightclub, near 34 Avenue and 99 Street, was sealed shut during an inspection last fall.

Obstructing or locking exits at businesses can prevent or hinder a customer's ability to leave a building safely during an emergency, said Fire Marshall Ian Sterling in a press release.

"Our fire-prevention officers conduct regular visits in bars, nightclubs and other such premises to ensure compliance with fire codes," said Sterling.

While situations are encountered at times, the majority of these types of establishments make a real effort to ensure that they comply and don't get fined.

Businesses can face up to $15,000 for the first offence and up to $30,000 for the second and subsequent offence, said the city.

Fire inspectors inspected 129 nightclubs and bars in the city last year, which resulted in two charges for non-compliance, said the city.

The officers also did 739 operational night patrols that resulted in five charges for non-compliance, said the city.

CRIME Edmonton police are asking the public's help in trying to identify a suspect who was involved in a string of muggings across the city.

All of the robberies involved some degree of violence and the suspect is believed to be responsible for at least four, including one that most recently occurred Thursday morning at a TD Bank machine near 165 Avenue and 97 Street, said police.

Suspect

In all of the cases, a man would approach his victims from behind and then threaten them with a knife while demanding that they hand over all of their cash, police said.

Police say in some cases, a victim's PIN was demanded and their debit or credit card would be taken with money being later withdrawn from their accounts.

Police have released surveillance images of the suspect.

Province aims to boost forestry

JEFF CUMMINGS

Jobs lost

• Roughly 3,800 jobs have been lost in Alberta's forestry sector, according to figures from the Alberta Forest Products Association.

Alberta's government will support the province's troubled forestry sector, but it won't spend as much as what was recommended by the industry.

The province has agreed to follow up on 43 recommendations that were made last August by a committee made up of MLAs and forest industry leaders that it says will help the struggling sector become more competitive and environmentally sustainable.

But Sustainable Resource Minister Ted Morton says the other six recommendations couldn't be approved because some infringe on Canada's softwood lumber agreement with the United States while others were too expensive for Alberta's government.

"This government is running a significant debt this year and the kind of funds that were perceived to be available last July and August are not there today," said Morton. "It's not that we reject it, but the response has been deferred."

Morton said the government, when it moves ahead with the approved recommendations, will make it easier for companies to transfer timber tenures and it will allow companies to sell wood to coal-fired power plants that will be used for fuel.

The cost of the move "is yet to be determined," said Morton.

The new virus would have a bigger impact on Africa than anywhere else should it break out on the world's poorest continent, due to weaker surveillance systems and insufficient resources, the WHO's Africa director said Thursday.

The U.S. pork industry, battered by import bans, could soon receive help from the government, said Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack.

Opening up opportunity

InBusiness

Charles Davies

To visit Cuba is literally to experience time travel. Outside the self-contained and sanitized resorts from which few Canadians venture, Cuba is stranded in the 1950s — a vista of decaying towns and cities, large stretches of unused countryside, hammerhead oil wells, clutches of workers at bus stops, crumbling highways, and innumerable classic cars, many belching apocalyptic clouds of exhaust. The only advertisements are revolutionary slogans painted on walls. And everywhere there's a constant police presence, a none-too-subtle reminder that Cuba remains a repressive state.

If the country has barely progressed since Fidel Castro took over on Jan. 1, 1959, the recent past has hardly been kinder. Thanks to the global recession, external financing for the island has dried up, falling commodity prices have cut into export revenues for key items such as nickel, food imports are becoming more costly, and tourism — now a roughly $3-billion-a-year industry — is slowing down.

All this will change, and not just because economic growth will resume. Fidel Castro, 82, and his younger, more pragmatic brother Raul, 77,

(who took on the Cuban presidency in 2006 due to Fidel's illness) are literally on their last legs. Equally, U.S. President Barack Obama's conciliatory gestures towards the island — backed by more positive U.S. public opinion about the country — signal that the U.S. embargo that has stifled Cuba's economy for decades may finally be coming to an end.

When you ask Cubans about the future, they speak without hesitation of a freer, more entrepreneurial country.

For Canadian companies, Cuba is an enormous business opportunity in the making. Aside from the further potential for tourism development, Cuba literally needs everything — foodstuffs, consumer goods, equipment of every description, and all kinds of infrastructure.

And if U.S. estimates are correct, there's something like five billion barrels of oil and 10 trillion cubic feet of natural gas waiting for exploitation offshore.

But aside from Sherritt International's well-developed nickel mining, oil and gas and electricity operations, corporate Canada seems largely absent. An estimated 85 Canadian firms operate there, but aside from the likes of Sherritt and Labatt Breweries (actually owned by Belgium's InBev S.A.) the rest are mid-sized and smaller companies.

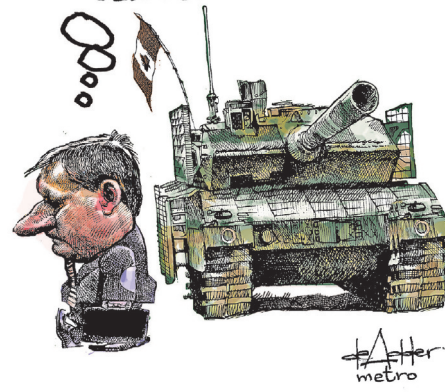

The Harper government's coolness toward Cuba in recent years hasn't helped either.

By contrast, sizable U.S. and European companies are already jockeying for position once the door opens on the new Cuba.

It's an opportunity that Canada cannot afford to miss.

Veteran financial writer Charles Davies recently spent time in Havana and northern Cuba, visiting sites once frequented by Ernest Hemingway.

I COULD USE ONE OF THOSE IN QUESTION PERIOD.

U.S. soldier may face death for role in Iraqi murders

A former U.S. soldier was convicted Thursday of raping an Iraqi girl and killing her and her family near Baghdad in 2006 and now faces a possible death sentence.

The federal court jury that delivered guilty verdicts on all 16 counts against former Pte. 1st Class Steven Green will decide his fate in the trial's death penalty phase beginning Monday.

Green, 24, was tried in federal court as a civilian on murder, rape and obstruction of justice charges since his arrest came after he was discharged from the U.S. Army later in 2006 for a "personality disorder."

The trial, which lasted eight days before 1½ days of jury deliberations, featured prosecution testimony by Green's former comrades in which they detailed the brutal assault, one of several incidents involving American soldiers that enraged Iraqis and strained U.S. relations.

Green, 19 at the time of the crime, was described as the trigger man in the group of five men, who donned black "ninja" outfits and raped Abeer Qassim Hamza al-Janabi, 14, and shot to death her and her father, mother and six-year-old sister.

Bringing life back to our urban desert

UrbanCompass

Terence Harding

metronews.ca/harding

The city is looking for ideas on how to spruce up Jasper Avenue. This is something that is long overdue.

When I first moved to Edmonton, Jasper Avenue was abuzz with activity both day and night. But that was before Edmonton Centre, West Edmonton Mall and a hip and trendy Whyte Avenue. The intervening years have changed Jasper from a vibrant main street into an urban desert.

So what is our city to do? I think the first thing it must do is to decide whether people are more important than cars because it is cars that get the greatest use from our main street. Assuming that the city decides that it wants people on Jasper, there are a couple of things it can do in the short term.

The first thing it should do is not be too ambitious. Jasper is very long; trying to change it all at once would spread our available dollars too thinly and not make much of an impact. It would be much better to do it in stages. I would suggest that we concentrate on the area between 100 Street and 104 Street.

We could take out parking on that section of the avenue and remove those sarcophaguses in the centre. Then we could reduce the avenue to two lanes. That being done, we should extend the sidewalks so that people can walk easily in the area and restaurants can create serving areas in front of their establishments. That way when people come to visit our fair city, they would clearly see that there is in fact a downtown in Edmonton.

Over the long term, we could continue the process along Jasper to 107th Street and then south toward the legislature building. We could then link up the walking area on Jasper to Winston Churchill Square.

I think that over time the end result would be an easy and interesting walk from city hall to the grounds of the legislature.

Over the very long term, we should look at completely closing off those seven blocks of Jasper Avenue to vehicular traffic. We could then do the same thing with most of Rice Howard Way. In the end, we would end up with an attractive, pedestrian and business friendly area in the downtown that could be used to accommodate festivals, parades and whatever else we want to do. What do you think?

BCE, Telus see drop in wireless revenue

TELECOM BCE Inc. and Telus Corp. warned Thursday that the recession is battering their key wireless businesses as consumers keep a tight rein on spending and use their mobile phones less often.

Telus said new wireless subscriber additions dropped 46 per cent to 48,000. Average monthly revenue for both prepaid and postpaid users fell 5.6 per cent to $58.39 per wireless user.

BCE added 35,000 new postpaid users to its wireless network, up from 28,000 a year earlier, but average revenue per postpaid user fell three per cent to $62.34 a month, it said.

Warner posts loss

Music company hit by plummeting CD sales

Warner Music Group on Thursday posted a wider quarter loss as recorded music sales fell faster than expected, sending its shares down 15 per cent.

The world's third-largest music company posted a net loss of $68 million US, or 45 cents a share in its fiscal second quarter ended March 31, compared with a year-earlier loss of $37 million, or 25 cents a share.

The company booked $33 million in charges for items such as the declining value of investments in digital music startup companies Lala and Imeem.

As a result of the write-offs, chief executive Edgar Bronfman told analysts on a conference call that he does not intend to make

Digital sales

Warner Music said its digital music sales rose six per cent from the prior year to $173 million US, or 26 per cent of total revenue in quarter.

more venture capital investments in digital music startups.

Revenue fell 17 per cent to $668 million, compared with the average Wall Street forecast of $730.2 million.

This sent the company's shares down 15 per cent to $4.63 on the New York Stock Exchange, but still well above the shares' recent low of $1.76 back in March.

Goldman analyst Ingrid Chung cited the "lighter-than-expected top line" and "the strong rally leading up to earnings" for the decline in a research note issued after the results.

Like other music companies, Warner is struggling with shrinking sales of recorded music as fewer fans buy albums in physical CD format.

The transition to downloaded music has led to a decline in revenue throughout the industry as fans increasingly buy lower-priced individual songs from web retailers.

Warner also blamed the weak results on a light record-release schedule and the turbulent global economy.

More to sports than NHL boardrooms

In case you haven't heard, there's a billionaire trying to buy an NHL team and move it to Southern Ontario. Toronto hockey fans are in a tizzy.

And while it's awesome to see the affection folks in the metropolis have for our ice-bound obsession, there is so much out there that screams for our attention.

It's true hockey has come to embody much of the Canadian identity, but this fascination with what is essentially a business deal has overshadowed what great sport is really all about.

I'm talking about the wizardry of Sidney Crosby and Alex Ovechkin on Stanley Cup playoff ice. The Blue Jays are making a little magic deep into May and are still in first place. And professional soccer is finally taking root in this country, reflecting a complex, multicultural reality.

Beyond all this, the playing fields are alive across the land. Young people are back in the water and on the tracks to someday soon fly Canadian colours on the international stage.

Don't get me wrong, I love hockey and think a seventh NHL franchise in this country would be sweet justice. But I'm not going to dwell on it.

Heck, Canada's going to host the Olympics in nine months! Women ski jumpers are fighting for gender equality and the right to compete at Vancouver 2010. We'll also find out if the Golden Horseshoe's Pan American Games bid will be successful.

The world's fastest man, Usain Bolt, will appear in Toronto, and just outside Halifax this summer they'll stage the world canoe/kayak championships. There are marathons to be run and swimming races to be won.

So there it is. I applaud Jim Balsillie's quest to plant another team in Canadian soil and redefine the NHL's future. But, in a sporting nation like ours, it's also good to know that the field of play goes well beyond the boards, or indeed boardrooms, of pro hockey.

Derick Martini's film (co-written by his brother Steven) works over the ter-

A scene from the Quebec film The Necessities of Life.

REVIEW Deeply moving without ever succumbing to shameless sentimentality, The Necessities of Life was justifiably Canada's selection for this year's best foreign film Oscar.

Unfortunately, the movie was not able to claim a nomination, but that should in no way discourage audiences from seeing one of our nation's finest films in recent years.

The movie can be a difficult and upsetting cinematic experience, but one with rich rewards for audiences willing to tough it out with their hankies.

Natar Ungalaaq stars as Tiviim, an Inuk from the far North who is separated from his family and shipped to Quebec after being diagnosed with tuberculosis. Tiviim soon finds himself in a hospital room surrounded by incommunicate hospital staff.

There, Tiviim befriends a nurse (Éveline Gélinas) who introduces him to an Inuk boy (Paul-André Brasseur) who gives Tiviim a reason to survive his ordeal.

Given that so much of the film is about isolation, depression, and culture shock, this movie can hardly be described as entertaining.

But thanks to subdued direction from Benoit Pilon and some deeply moving performances, it's still an intellectually nourishing night at the movies.

The Passione of Paul Potts

British tenor and reality TV champ back with a new CD

Paul Potts has two keys to survival in the spotlight, which he'd like to share with current Britain's Got Talent contestant Susan Boyle: Take it day-by-day, and eat healthy.

The British tenor and 2007 winner of the variety show is great at sticking to the first. The other one? Not so much, but it's something he's trying to change as he jets across the globe in promotion of his second release, Passione. Accompanied by the Czech National Symphony Orchestra, Potts mixes classic operatic numbers and contemporary hits (Procol Harum's A Whiter Shade of Pale is decidedly different when sung in that style).

Though Passione's lineup had to be approved by BGT judge Simon Cowell, Potts had more input this time around into whittling down 60 potential songs onto the 10-track release than on his debut, One Chance.

"I wanted the songs to reflect many different kinds of passion," says the Bristol native and former cellphone store manager. "They're simple tunes, but incredibly beautiful, I think. Some of them are quite a challenge for a tenor to sing, quite rangey, which is what I wanted. We had more time to record it, so we were able to pace it better."

And pace is something he'll have to keep up over the next little while as he tours. Noting diabetes runs in the family, Potts says it's important to keep the strict diet that helped him shed six kilograms since January — especially in North America where he says steakhouses abound in comparison to Europe. It's the home-cooking Potts misses the most on the road, a link to normalcy (he gestures quotes with his fingers when he says it) between stints in the bright lights.

"I used to travel on a bike but now I travel here, there and everywhere," he said. "I still do things the way I've always done. I end up doing the shopping at home — my wife hates it — and people come up to me like I'm crazy. They ask me haven't I got someone to do my shopping for me. Well no, why should I? I'd have to make a list and be organized if I did that."

As for a duet with

Paul Potts

Boyle, his BGT contemporary who became an overnight sensation much like he did two years before, he won't rule it out. Though he doesn't think that far ahead, and he advises her not to either, at least not past a performance.

"I would perform as if nothing's going to happen after it, because otherwise you put a lot of pressure on yourself and you think, 'This could happen, that could happen,'" he said. "You should never concentrate on the What If's. You should concentrate on what you have in front of you, right here and now."

The future of digital music

On-demand streams could be the next big thing for the industry

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

metronews.ca/soundcheck

For most people, obtaining music involves a transactional experience. I give you money and in exchange, you give me a piece of plastic (a CD, a record, a tape) or access to a digital file (iTunes, eMusic, etc.). At the end of the transaction, I possess (own) a copy of the performance. And it will remain mine until I throw it away or delete it from my hard drive.

But this idea of possessing music is becoming a rather quaint notion. Think about it: If you're able to access whatever song you want from wherever you are at whatever time on any device you choose, why on Earth would you ever need to physically possess a piece of plastic or a digital file?

This is the thinking behind a number of emerging music services that offer on-demand streams. Spotify (a Swedish creation not yet available in Canada) allows users to instantly access specific songs or albums through your computer. Although you need a wired Internet connection right now, coders are working on an application for the iPhone, Google's Android platform and Wi-Fi. Spotify is free for the moment, but that might change once it's out of beta.

We7 is a U.K. service that does much the same thing with the complete blessing of the major labels. Part of its business model involves running ads that they called "blipverts" before songs.

In both cases, the consumer doesn't have to pay for anything. The value for the music streaming company and their label partners comes from the data they capture from you. By registering with these services, companies know who you are, what you're listening to and what kind of device you're using.

Theoretically, this allows them to better target you with music recommendations. It also means better targeting for advertisers, but most people don't mind being subjected to ads as long as they're for goods and services in which they might be interested.

The thinking here is twofold: The music "feels" free to the consumer. It's like having the world's biggest hard drive full of music without having to pay for anything — or without it taking up space on the shelf or the hard drive. Second, if you can get all the music you want, it should cut down on piracy.

Will it work? Maybe. We'll see. The digital world is littered with good ideas.

Leo-nominated actor Benjamin Arthur from TV's Less Than Kind.

TV persona parallels actor

Less Than Kind's Benjamin Arthur is up for a Leo Award for his role as Josh

IAN JOHNSTON
for Metro Canada

Actor Benjamin Arthur says there's a lot of himself in his Josh Blecher character on TV's Less Than Kind.

Which is a surprise. Though they are both actors, Josh is also a conceited bully/exhibitionist with little ambition who takes great delight in torturing his younger brother.

"I'm in there, absolutely," says Arthur, 28, whose Less Than Kind role has been nominated for a Leo Award. "I was preparing for the part for 28 years. But I'm a 'one' normally. And you need to turn the dial up to 10 to play Josh."

Now filming its second season, Less Than Kind is a dark comedy about a dysfunctional Winnipeg family and its perpetually embarrassed teen son Sheldon (Jesse Camacho).

It's Sheldon's poor luck in life to be stuck with a self-destructive criminal dad (Maury Chaykin), and pyromaniac mom (Wendel Meldrum). Then there's brother Josh, whose idea of high comedy is to shake his "junk" in Sheldon's face (which he does in Arthur's Leo-nominated episode).

"Josh runs completely off of bravado and ego. He's pure manic energy," says Arthur.

The actor admits he needed some of that excess energy to stay warm during the making of the first season of Less Than Kind, which was shot in the dead of winter in Winnipeg.

"Last season was ridiculous. I mean, I lived in Kitchik (B.C.), so I'm used to cold. But this was like minus 52 C. You had 55 seconds of shooting before you have to stop or your skin freezes. And I'm there dressed in my torn Josh jeans and V-neck T-shirt."

Arthur says his nomination for a Leo Award — given to the best in British Columbian film and television — is a big deal to a guy from Kitchik, though a little bit weird.

"It's for Best Supporting Actor In A Dramatic Series. But I'm in a comedy. So I'm up against actors in serious shows like The Guard. I can see them announcing my nomination by running a clip of me shaking it naked."

• The Leo Awards will be presented this weekend in Vancouver. Reruns of the first season of Less Than Kind air on City TV. Check local listings for times and channels.

In its inaugural "most beautiful" ranking, Hello! Canada has honoured country singer Shania Twain with the title of Canada's Most Beautiful Woman.

"Pop-country singing sensation Shania Twain, 43, is self-effacing when it comes to her undeniable beauty," says the magazine.

"I don't think I'm ugly, I just think I'm overrated on the cutie factor," she says. But for the stunner, who has been the face of the cosmetic giant Revlon, feeling good is the key to looking great. "I like to feel like a woman," she says. "I feel sexy in a plain white T-shirt with nothing underneath."

On newsstands now, the new issue of the magazine pays tribute to the most beautiful the country has to offer — including TV and movie stars, politicians, royalty, musicians and athletes.

Some other Canadians who made Hello's Most Beautiful list include Dr. Ruby Dhalla, Kiefer Sutherland, Kim Cattrall, Evangeline Lilly, The Four Tenors, and 90210 stars Shanae Grimes, Jessica Lowdes, Dustin Milligan and Jason Priestley.

'I won't know this world without her'

TRUE LOVE In an exclusive interview with People, an emotional and often teary-eyed Ryan O'Neal spoke for the first time about the devastating illness of his longtime partner, Farrah Fawcett, who has battled cancer for the past two and a half years.

"It's a love story. I just don't know how to play this one. I won't know this world without her," O'Neal, 68, says of his current role as caretaker. "Cancer is an insidious enemy."

O'Neal also revealed for the first time how the anal cancer long ago spread to other parts of Fawcett's body, including her liver. "She stays in bed now. The doctors see that she is comfortable. Farrah is on IVs, but some of that is for nourishment," he explains. "The treatment has pretty much ended."

Fawcett, 62, herself tells of her journey through illness in Farrah's Story a two-hour NBC documentary she shot with pal Alana Stewart that airs May 15.

Sarah Jessica's wild surrogate

IS THAT HEREDITARY? Michelle Ross, the woman reportedly serving as a surrogate mother for Matthew Broderick and Sarah Jessica Parker, has a bit of a wild past, according to Star magazine.

Her ex-husband, Joe Ecker, tells the magazine that Ross is bisexual — and even has a tattoo on her wrist proclaiming it.

Ross herself even admitted that she has a bit of wild side. "I have had pink hair and tattoos and spiked collars," Ross tells the magazine. "My favourite shoes are five-inch black spike heels, which lace up the front."

Legal loophole for Chris?

LEGAL EAGLE Chris Brown's legal team is on the move, people.com reports.

The singer's lawyer, Mark Geragos, filed a request in a Los Angeles court Wednesday seeking access to LAPD records, arguing that Rihanna's injury photo — widely distributed on the Web — was "illegally leaked to the media" by police and may result in a case dismissal, radaronline.com reports.

"I am informed and believe that this highly prejudicial photograph was sold by an LAPD officer to the entertainment website, TMZ," Geragos states.

"The photograph was immediately viewed by hundreds of thousands of viewers and was displayed on every news channel for several weeks ... The purpose of the leak was necessarily for profit and to vilify Mr. Brown and poison the potential jury pool."

Geragos adds that if LAPD records show "dishonest conduct" by its officers, "I intend to use such evidence at the preliminary hearing to attack their credibility ... I believe there is a reasonable likelihood that the case will be dismissed at the preliminary hearing."

L.A. criminal defence attorney Jeffery Rubenstein, who's not involved in the case, says, "It's unlikely the judge will dismiss the case on the grounds of leaked evidence. It's not police conduct at issue here, it's Chris Brown's."

Brown, 20, has pleaded not guilty to allegedly beating Rihanna on Feb. 8. A preliminary hearing, in which the court determines if there's enough evidence for trial, is to begin within eight court days of May 28.

Kiefer's head-butting has consequences

PROBATION PROBLEM Kiefer Sutherland was charged with assault after he allegedly head-butted a man at a party in New York on Tuesday, but authorities in Los Angeles may come down harder on him, people.com reports.

Sutherland, who's currently serving a five-year probation term in Los Angeles for his second DUI conviction, may have violated those terms, which clearly state the actor must "obey all laws."

Sutherland — who surrendered to police yesterday, according to local news reports — allegedly came to the defence of actress Brooke Shields after Jack McCollough reportedly bumped into Shields.

"Our office intends to contact the NYPD and New York prosecutors to review the incident and determine whether Mr. Sutherland violated probation," L.A. City Attorney spokesman Frank Mateljan tells People.

A probation violation often means a return to jail. Sutherland previously spent 48 days in jail on his second DUI conviction.

Heart yes, mind no: Sam

INDECISION Lindsay Lohan and Samantha Ronson may be reconciling, sources say. Lohan reportedly spent the night at Ronson's home early this week after telling E! News that the two were "in touch."

And Lohan's attempts to get Ronson back may be working. "It's a cycle that can go on forever," a source tells People magazine. "Now that things have died down a little and Lindsay is behaving herself and showing Sam what she wants to see, Sam's strength to stay away eases up."

But the source adds that Ronson is still resisting. "Sam knows in her head, life is truly better off without Lindsay — even if her heart sometimes says otherwise."

Dan's new drag queen BFF

UNLIKELY PAIR Daniel Radcliffe has befriended a drag queen, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The Harry Potter star has been spotted enjoying several dinners with Our Lady J, a transvestite Dolly Parton impersonator he met in New York last year.

The pair was photographed walking arm-in-arm on Sunday, and the 19-year-old actor is believed to have formed a close bond with his new pal.

A close friend of Our Lady J told Britain's The Sun newspaper: "Daniel is fascinated by the drag culture and is always asking questions."

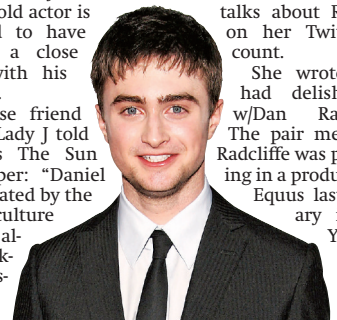

He went to a few shows and was made to feel very welcome.

"He's a lovely guy and he and Our Lady J got on like a house on fire. They have eaten out together and been to parties. They have become quite close."

Our Lady J — who makes a living performing songs by Dolly, Alanis Morissette and Nine Inch Nails — talks about Radcliffe on her Twitter account.

She wrote: "Just had delish meal w/Dan Radcliffe." The pair met when Radcliffe was performing in a production of Equus last February in New York.

MJ sued by own spokeswoman

SOME LOYALTY Michael Jackson is facing more legal trouble, this time from within his own camp. His spokesperson Raymonte Bain is suing him $44 million owed for her work, according to Hollyscoop. "Mr. Jackson has elected not to honour the financial obligations of our contractual relationship, despite my numerous attempts to amicably resolve this matter," Bain said.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Stuffed Rissoles

INGREDIENTS:

1 lb (500 g) lean ground beef
3.8-oz (110-g) bottle or package hamburger seasoning mix
1 tbsp (15 ml) Worcestershire sauce
1 tbsp (15 ml) tomato sauce
salt and freshly ground black pepper
1/2 cup (125 ml) grated cheddar

1 tbsp (15 ml) canola oil

TO SERVE:

Tomato sauce

METHOD:

1. Put meat, hamburger seasoning, Worcestershire sauce, tomato sauce and salt and freshly ground black pepper into bowl. Knead mixture until well combined. Cover with plastic wrap and let stand 5-10 minutes.

2. Divide mixture into four; shape each portion into flat patty. Using thumb, make deep hole in centre of each patty, taking care not to push all the way through.

3. Place a quarter of cheese into centre of each patty, then mould meat over to cover cheese. If necessary, press flat.

4. Heat oil in large frying pan. Add patties and cook over moderate heat until cooked through, 5-7 minutes per side. Serve with tomato sauce.
